

Got Transfer Advice?

Advice for students by students

In the Spring of 2024, Institutional Research, Planning, and Effectiveness (IRPE) conducted three focus groups with Fresno City College students. The goal of the focus groups was to gain a better understanding of how the classroom and counseling experiences of students at FCC impact their transfer journeys.

So... what are students saying?

In the focus groups, we asked students to share advice with friends on how to transfer successfully from FCC. Below is some of the top advice they shared. Some helpful tips for your success are included too!

“Make sure your schedule aligns with what you're doing outside.”

Tip: Use a planner or calendar app to manage your time effectively.

“Don't be the first one to leave class because...somebody has the same questions you always have and maybe...they're going to go ask the teacher.”

Tip: Use the last few minutes of class to clarify any doubts with your professor.

“Talk to your counselor, talk to your professors. Check out different schools to see what you want to transfer to.”

Tip: Schedule regular meetings with your counselor to stay on track.

“Not to be afraid to ask for help because there's so much help available here.”

Tip: Visit the student support center or join study groups for additional help.

“I think you have to be an advocate for yourself and say, this is the person that I want to see.”

Tip: Speak up for your needs and don't hesitate to request meetings with specific counselors who can best support your transfer goals.
